Now this is a tough tow job

A Provo man escaped injury but the vehicle he was driving ended up going for a swim during a one-car accident Wednesday near Vivian Park in Provo Canyon. According to a Utah Highway Patrol spokesperson, George Larsen, 1360 N. 1160 W., was attempting to turn onto South Fork Road when he lost control of the vehicle. The car kept sliding into the Provo River, but Larsen was able to abandon ship before it entered the icy water. The incident occurred approximately 1:30 p.m. The car was removed from the river later in the day by a local towing company.

Brundtland and Nudel will share the magazine's "Simone de Beauvoir International Woman of the Year Award," named for the French feminist who died in 1986.

Other winners include USA Today publisher Cathleen Black, pediatric surgeon Patricia Donohoe of Boston, author Toni Morrison and tennis star Martina Navratilova. Also:

- Mystery writer Sara Paretsky, of Chicago, a co-founder of Sisters in Crime, a women's caucus in the Mystery Writers of American organization.

- Beulah Mae Donald, of Mobile, Ala., who won a $7 million lawsuit against the Ku Klux Klan after her son was lynched.

- Road dispatcher Diane Joyce, of Morgan Hill, Calif., who won a landmark decision in the first Supreme Court ruling on gender-based affirmative action.

- Wilma Mankiller, of Tahlequah, Okla., the first woman elected principal chief of the Cherokee Nation.

around him, then some responses began to occur."

Quarnberg said Snow had asked the child the same questions two or three times and the child answered "no," then finally said "yes."

He indicated that the child seemed "resistive in getting on her lap. He wiggled around a lot and made efforts to get down."

He said the questions Snow asked were not the common type of questions asked in an lation.

He said Snow had also described paraphernalia used in sexual conduct, but in searching the homes his officers had been unable to find any of it.

Robert Smith, psychologist with LDS Social Services and former stake president in the Lehi North Stake, testified Wednesday that he had been interrupted in an interview with a client by a telephone from Dr. Snow on July 22,

Smith said he spent 10 minutes the following day at his office talking to the girls individually and then to the girls and their father together.

"Would you have done it if Barbara Snow had not requested it?" Hadfield's attorney asked. Smith answered "I think coerced is a more accurate description."

He said he was convinced the girls had not taken part in any child abuse.

KENNEDY:

shouldn't take a chance on confirming Kennedy because he might provide a fifth vote to override the high court's 1973 Roe vs. Wade ruling, which legalized abortion nationwide.

"We have no idea what he would do on Roe versus Wade," she said, adding that "women will not accept the overturning" of the ruling.

Ms. Yard also accused Kennedy of insensitivity to women's fight for equality and of failing to see discrimination where it plainly exists.

She told the 14-member committee it might not be as
